Froome après Armstrong et Indurain ?

La commission Cahuzac achève ses auditions sur fond de polémique

L'audition "compliquée" de Moscovici devant la commision Cahuzac

HOLLANDE - C'est comme pour le mariage gay. Il y a les pros et les antis. Mais cette fois, cela concerne l'intervention de François Hollande en direct sur le plateau de France 2 et cela se déroule sur Twitter. Pas de lacrymos mais il y eut des larmes, car l'affrontement fut violent...

Les deux "bandes" étaient organisées. Très bien organisées même. Les "twittos" ont mis en place et fait monter sur le réseau social deux, voire trois mots-clés (hashtags): #StopHollande, #AvecHollande ainsi qu'un petit troisième #SansHollande.

Qui l'a emporté? Il faut distinguer le quantitatif du qualitatif. Le nombre et le contenu... Côté chiffre, #StopHollande avait une légère longueur d'avance à la fin de l'intervention de François Hollande, selon l'outil Hashtagbattle:

Les médias partenaires du site Internet, qui s'étaient auparavant entendus avec Wikileaks pour une diffusion commune des télégrammes américains en les expurgeant de noms sensibles, ont vivement réagi à la publication in extenso des câbles. Dans un communiqué conjoint, The Guardian (Royaume-Uni), le New York Times (Etats-Unis), Der Spiegel (Allemagne) et El Pais (Espagne) «déplorent la décision de WikiLeaks de publier des câbles non édités, qui peut mettre des sources en danger». «La décision aujourd'hui de publier a été prise
